

Dear Friends,

In 2013 we traveled throughout the US from New York to Florida, from Texas to Delaware ministering in 14 states. We started this year in Alabama and Ohio, and over the next several weeks we are scheduled to minister in a number of churches in Virginia and Florida. We are thankful for each opportunity God gives us to present His Word and its power to change lives. To check out our schedule for 2014, you can go to alanharrisministries.org. As we look back on 2013 and forward to 2014, we would like to use this newsletter to allow each member of the family (that is currently traveling together) to share something...a recollection, a goal, a ministry highlight...whatever is on his/her heart.

We pray that each of you will fall more in love with God in 2014 as you focus on Him and His Word. Thank you for your prayers and donations.

Blessings,
Alan, Angie, and Andrew

Praise!

We sold our fifth wheel trailer! We still have the truck we used to tow the trailer. After our winter/spring tour, we will try to sell that as well. For 15 months now, we have found various forms of lodging as we travel. We thank those of you who have extended you hospitality to us.

Prayer

Please pray with us about the possibility of returning to the Philippines in December 2014.

Alan

As I look back on 2013, so many memories come to mind. I was reminded again that after 31 years in evangelism, God still has a place for me in kingdom work. Sometimes it's behind the scenes working with street kids or addiction ministries like Celebrate Recovery. I didn't used to think I had much in common with these folks, but I do. The same grace of God that saved them has saved me and made us one through the blood of Jesus. I wish all of our supporters could hear each testimony. One day you will because you helped us get there.

I was particularly blessed by sharing meetings with Andrew last year. He preached for some of the services, people were saved and later took that first step of obedience to the Lord by being baptized. He was also effective in getting discipleship material into the hands of folks who desperately needed it. The devil fought him hard in 2013, trying to sidetrack him, but the Lord has kept him going forward. Please pray that the Lord will do the same for all of us in 2014.

Angie

Looking back through Alan's calendar book, trying to choose some highlights to share, tears come to my eyes as I think of the relationships God has allowed us to have with so many pastors and their wives. An important part of our ministry is to be an encouragement to pastors and their families. Sometimes I get so wrapped up in checking off the items on my "to do" list that I do not take advantage of opportunities to go beneath the surface and encourage those around me. But when I do, God encourages me as well. Bearing one another's burdens really does "fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6:2)

Two opportunities for ministry that I especially enjoyed were both in May. One was in Corning, New York, as Alan and I worked together to present a special message for some young children. Another was in Lorain, Ohio, as I spoke for a ladies' meeting. I'm not sure how much they enjoyed it, but I know I did!

I can't wait to see what God has in store for 2014....

Andrew

This summer, I had the opportunity to speak at a Friday night outreach program for young adults and teens. I decided to use a sermon that I had heard my dad preach. As I spoke to the people that night, I could tell God was moving in their hearts. After I spoke, an invitation was given for people to pray at the altar and just talk to God about their lives. God began truly working on the folks there as the simple invitation ended up lasting for at least an hour. Experiences like that one confirm for me that I am undeniably where God wants me to be.

An unexpected highlight of this past year that was a true joy and blessing happened during a summer revival in a Indiana. A lady I have known for most of my life attended the meeting and took it upon herself to be my personal prayer warrior, and for her I am so thankful. I am extremely grateful for all of you who have faithfully supported our ministry through prayer over the years.
